Doug McNicol Charter Rights Workshop

Charter Rights in the Workplace

(All Levels)

In recent years the Supreme Court of Canada, and some lower courts, have confirmed important rights for Canadian unions and their members.

Decisions regarding Bill 29 in the health care sector, the Harper government back-to-work order against postal workers and the recent BC Teachers' Federation win over the right to negotiate class size and composition all combine to establish that Charter rights such as freedom of association include the right to free collective bargaining and due process.

The implications of these decisions by our top judiciary reach into every workplace—both public and private sector. This course provides an overview of the Charter Rights, the key decisions for unions and how these cases can be used to advance our collective interests.
